The Classic Malts™

Experience – recorded and produced at Ardifuir, home of Andrew Malcolm.

Experience - a musical journey of discovery around the Classic Malts of Scotland – Talisker, Glenkinchie, Cragganmore, Lagavulin, Oban and Dalwhinnie.

Six original tracks evoking the subtle mystery of each unique whisky making region, from the grandeur of Skye to the rustic charm of East Lothian

Composed by former Capercaillie guitarist and songwriter John Saich, and featuring some of Scotland's top traditional musicians- Brian McAlpine, Gavin Marwick and Rod Paul.

Experience is contemporary in style yet draws deeply upon Scottish tradition, and has been developed with the assistance and guidance of the Classic Malts of Scotland who believe this to be a worthy testament to their national treasure.

Experience includes an 8-page colour booklet with comprehensive sleeve notes. The Classic Malts are representative of six highly distinctive regions, highlighting the diversity of Scotland both in its landscape and traditions.

With this in mind Experience, has been recognised by Visit Scotland as a valuable tool in the promotion of Scotland in the UK and overseas. The Visit Scotland web site address is included in the CD booklet, taking the listener that little bit closer to the source of inspiration. A Classic Malts web site is currently in development which will give an in-depth view of each one of the six regions and distilleries.

Wild Biscuit's Musical Director and Composer John Saich was for ten years bass player and guitarist with Scots supergroup Capercaillie, considered by many to be pioneers in the field of Celtic roots music. Having toured the world from the Middle East to America, Australia, Japan and Brazil, this long association achieved platinum, gold and silver discs for two of their best selling albums. John contributed many songs to the band's releases over the years, with tracks such as "Four Stone Walls" and "Outlaws" featuring on the "Best of Capercaillie" collection in 1998.
